LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT: THE CHALLENGE

Up to 70% of an organization's costs are people costs. No organization would allow an employee to abuse a laptop with a hammer, and yet we allow poor leadership skills to direct our biggest investment: staff.

- Poor leadership decisions cost the bottom line: turnover, missed opportunities, poor morale
- Good leadership is an accelerant, amplifying and multiplying your existing resources and catapulting everyone to greater results

Org-ology applies proven approaches, ties them to your strategic goals, and creates a unique program to build the leadership team you need.

ORG-OLGY LEADERSHIP APPROACH

Org-ology's approach to leadership development begins with three core competencies:

- Leading yourself
- Leading others
- Leading the organization.

Based on current leading research, these competencies are the key to building effective leaders from the inside out.

Our leadership development model is based on phased skill and knowledge acquisition:

- Understanding strengths and gaps
- Visualizing a better future organization
- Acquiring the tools to build that future
- Building the future

Org-ology builds a fundamental basis of personal and technical leadership. On this basis the course design enables your unique organization to link your own strategic priorities into the content and offers workshop-type engagement for participants to work on real day-to-day challenges.

Org-ology's design uses cohorts as one of several tools to enable this course personalization.

Cohorts: Participants are broken into cohorts of 7-10 diverse individuals who proceed together through this training process. A tool with a long track record of success, cohorts are used across higher education, the military and other organizations to build bonds and create a specific learning dynamic critical to leadership development.

DETAILED LEADERSHIP PROGRAM OUTLINE

Org-ology's program breaks into three phases, which we recommend be extended over a several month timeframe to allow for development and application between the phases. Classroom days do not need to be offered back-to-back. They may be scheduled separately, allowing participants self-reflection between sessions.

Each of these phases can be personalized to your strategic goals in a formal or informal manner.

PHASE 1 LEADING YOURSELF –

Phase 1 focuses on introspection and each participant understanding his or her impact as an individual within a team. In this phase each participant learns to lead him or herself, connects with and builds trust with the members of the cohort as part of a team.

This Org-ology course is a 2-day group coaching workshop that builds across three areas:

1. An overview of the self.
2. How do your type preferences shape a team or organization?
3. How can the individual adjust to or modify behavior based on situation awareness and others.

Pre-work: Org-ology proposes the following off-the-shelf assessments as a multi-faceted coaching model:

- The Thomas-Kilmann Instrument (TKI) tool assesses typical behavior in conflict situations and describes it along various dimensions
- The Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI) tool is based on the theory of psychological types described by C. G. Jung. The essence is that much seemingly random behavior is actually quite orderly and consistent, being due to basic differences in the ways an individual prefers to use perceptions and judgments.
- The Fundamental Interpersonal Relations Orientation (FIRO-B) tool helps an individual understand interpersonal needs and how those needs influence communication style and behavior in professional performance.

- The Managerial Style Questionnaire (MSQ) tool helps identify an individual's use of different leadership styles and which style is most often used.
- Optional - 360- degree feedback, also known as multi-rater feedback, is a process or a tool that solicits information from a variety of workplace sources on an employee's work-related behavior and/or performance. This can be used for a customized focus on YOUR ORGANIZATION-specific targets.

Participants are required to complete the instruments before training and the results are used in the training and coaching of participants individually and as a group. Each participant will receive a report of their responses to the instruments and use these to create a plan for the future.

Level of effort:

- Participants classroom time 2 days (14 hours).
- Participants out-of-classroom time 8-10 hours.
- Pre-work: complete the coaching instruments read and complete answers in the coaching report.
- Out-of-class project: create individual action plan based on the coaching report information.

PHASE 2 LEADING OTHERS —

Phase 2 focuses on a combination of fundamental leadership skills with extensive practice of complex communications. The topics included in this 2-day course range from the basics to the complex, including:

- Balancing strategic and operational priorities
- Managing and guiding team dynamics
- Measuring growth and managing performance
- Effective communications, meetings and more
- Leading difficult conversations
- Coaching conversations and giving feedback
- Leading by influence

These sessions specifically highlight role-playing and practice: giving feedback and leading difficult conversations are complex skills that can only be acquired with personal practice.

Pre-work:

Book or articles such as:

- "What Google Learned From its Quest to Build the Perfect Team", NYT 26 February 2016
- "Drive", by Daniel Pink
- "Thinking, Fast and Slow", by Daniel Kahneman

Level of effort:

- Participants' classroom time 2 days (16 hours).
- Participants' out-of-classroom time 6-8 hours
- Pre-work: TBD reading assignment
- Out-of-class project: action plan to be achieved with team with report-out

PHASE 3 LEADING THE ORGANIZATION –

Phase 3 looks outward, building on the understanding gained in the first two phases and considering change across the organization. Org-ology uses the “High-Performing Organizations” diagnostic methodology (from the Tavistock Institute) and leads participants through an assessment of their day-to-day challenges. Participants leave the workshop as a cohesive workgroup with a shared perspective and pragmatic plans for leading their teams and the organization.

The topics covered in this 2-day course include:

- High-performing Organizations (HPOs): design, strategy, innovation, effectiveness, measures
- Diagnosing an HPO: are we an HPO?
- Leading in an HPO
- Applying HPO to our organization

Level of effort:

- Participants classroom time 2 days (16 hours).
- Participants out-of-classroom time 6-8 hours.
- Pre-work: complete the pre-reading and be prepared to discuss the articles as they relate to the organization.
- Out-of-class project: create individual action plan based on the learning from all three phases.

How We Do It

Leadership Development Specific to You –

Org-ology knows that each organization is unique. Our leadership development program is designed to balance a delivery of key leadership theory and methods with the specific needs and strategy of your organization.

Each course is designed to allow for low-effort tailoring.

Tailoring the course may include:

- Changes in pre-reading content: authors or subjects specific to your current challenges
- Adapting post-course assignments: linking projects to internal initiatives
- Including scenarios or examples into course content
- Minor modifications in topics

Based on our modular program design, all of these changes can be at little to no cost.

Custom Content Development

Sometimes you may need more.

An organization's strategic goals may require a more unique intervention. Org-ology's team includes training development expertise and the project management skills needed to build a fully unique leadership curriculum.

Here's our development process:
